Mercenaries Keep Katangan Fighting Going

U. N. Commander Says Tshombe No Longer Directs Resistance

LEOPOLDVILLE, the Congo (AP)—The Congo's U.N. commander asserted Sunday resistance in war-torn Katanga no longer is directed by President Moise Tshombe but by white mercenaries acting for financial interests in the mineral-rich province.

Irish Gen. Sean McKeon said overtures to end the fighting have been made by Tshombe representatives, but that they have not been presented formally to U.N. officials. He declined to give any details.

"There are indications that Tshombe realizes the hopelessness of his position," McKeon told reporters after a flying visit to Elisabethville, where the U.N. Katanga fighting was in its sixth day.

"Tshombe and his ministers have lost control of the fighting," said McKeon. "It now is being conducted by the mercenaries. We don't think Tshombe could stop it now even if he wanted to."

U.N. authorities reported that U.N. jets firing cannons and rockets attacked the Katanga police camp in Elisabethville in an attempt to knock out a key mortar battery. Mortar fire from Camp

Massart had prevented U.N. Swedish and Irish troop advances on a strategic underpass in the area. Early reports gave no word on the results of the air strike or any indication of casualties.

McKeon called the Katanga resistance highly organized and said the mercenaries were conducting a "dirty war" against U.N. forces. But he expressed confidence the U.N. troops would need only a few more days to restore order to the province.

He estimated over-all casualties in the Elisabethville fighting at between 50 and 60. Three U.N. soldiers have been killed, he said, including a Swedish soldier shot Saturday from ambush.

In Brussels, the Belgian radio said U.N. forces shelled residential areas in Elisabethville Saturday night but apparently have not won any decisive point so far. The broadcast quoted messages from radio amateurs reaching Brussels as saying U.N. jet planes strafed a hospital at the Le Marinel power plant, about 30 miles north of Kolwezi. Two persons were reported wounded.

A later broadcast said the big U.N. base at Kamina, 260 miles northwest of Elisabethville, had been surrounded by hostile Katanga tribes.

Ideological Feud Erupts In Red Split

Soviet Withdraws Diplomats, Orders Albanians' Ouster

LONDON (AP)—The Soviet Union has withdrawn its diplomats from Albania and the Albanian Embassy in Moscow announced Sunday relations were ruptured several days ago.

It was the most spectacular split in the ranks of world communism since Yugoslavia was expelled from the Cominform in 1948 for refusing to hew to Moscow's party line.

But the break had been expected ever since Premier Khrushchev, at the October Soviet party congress, denounced the Albanian leaders as Stalinist and accused them of trying to disrupt Communist unity.

"They've been throwing stones at each other for a long time," said a State Department spokesman in Washington. "But under their system this might mean a lot and it might not mean anything."

A new issue of the Soviet magazine, Pro-Communist, the party's monthly bible, said "imperialists" were waiting to welcome Albania.

Red China Backs Albania

Other Eastern-bloc nations are expected to follow the Kremlin's lead, leaving Albania supported only by Communist China in an ideological feud that has blazed for more than a year.

The official Albanian agency ATA was the first to announce Sunday morning that Soviet diplomats had left Albania and the Albanian diplomats had been told to get out of Moscow.

Dispatches from Moscow did not say when the Albanians would leave. The Albanian ambassador went home several weeks ago, leaving the embassy under a charge d'affaire.

ATA said there had been an exchange of notes beginning Nov. 25, concluding with one dated Saturday announcing the withdrawal of the Soviet Embassy and commercial staff. ATA said this note repeated a demand for the Albanian personnel to quit Moscow, first made orally last month by a Soviet Foreign Ministry representative.

Action "Without Precedent"

The agency carried a statement by the official Albanian Communist newspaper Zeri E Populit declaring the Soviet action "without precedent in the relations of Socialist countries" and denouncing the Soviet leadership generally and Khrushchev personally.

By diplomatic accounts, the trouble between Albania and the Soviet Union exploded in an angry exchange between Khrushchev and Albanian Communist chief Enver Hoxha at the Moscow conference of world Communist leaders in November 1960.

Hoxha was said to have sided with Red China's view that with capitalism is inevitable, and called Khrushchev a traitor to Communist doctrine. A. This, Khrushchev is supposed to have shouted: "Comrade Hoxha, you have poured a bucket of dung on me and you will have to wash it off."

Hoxha hurriedly left Moscow. Albania boycotted this fall's Soviet Communist party congress, at which Khrushchev and others accused the Albanian leadership of Stalinism and Stalin-style terror.

West Leaders Launch Berlin Strategy Talks

PARIS (AP)—Diplomatic leaders of the Western world assembled here Sunday, firmly united in a determination to preserve the freedom of West Berlin, but still at odds on how to do it.

American Secretary of State Dean Rusk flew in from Washington a few hours after Lord Home, British foreign secretary, arrived from London. West German Foreign Minister Gerhard Schroeder was already on the scene with French Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville.

The arrivals touched off a week of top-speed diplomatic activity focused on the Berlin crisis and the problem of Germany in an effort to lay down joint Allied policy. Meetings, and decisions, come to a head in the annual ministerial session of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization council beginning Wednesday.

Ministers of the Western Big Three—the United States, France and Britain—met Monday morning in the French Foreign Ministry for a review of the Berlin situation from the standpoint of the city's occupation powers. Fourpower conferences, including Schroeder for West Germany, get under way in the afternoon.

At the heart of these meetings is the desire of Washington and London to initiate a new round of negotiations with the Soviet Union on the status of Berlin. France opposes such action at this time.

The West Germans have come around, perhaps reluctantly, to the American-British position, and West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer spent all day Saturday here with French President Charles de Gaulle to explain Bonn's attitude.

Device Measures, Negotiations Counts Raindrops In Dominican Crisis Collapse

WASHINGTON (AP)—Army scientists have found a way to measure raindrops thousands of an inch wide and to count tens of thousands of them a minute. It's done with a new electronic device called a raindrop sizer and counter, the Army said Sunday.

The machine is designed to work in a drizzle or a downpour. It can measure drops in 13 sizes ranging from eight-thousandths of an inch to more than one-eighth of an inch in diameter. And it can count as many as 10,000 drops a minute of each size.

Eichmann Trial In Final Phase

JERUSALEM (AP)—Adolf Eichmann waited alone in his cell Sunday for his Israeli judges to pass judgment on him.

The former Gestapo colonel, charged with carrying out Adolf Hitler's plot to exterminate Europe's Jewry during World War II, goes before the three-judge tribunal Monday morning to hear the verdict.

Presiding Judge Moshe Landau will open the final phase of Eichmann's trial by reading a judgment drawn up over the past three months. It is reported to cover 300 pages and its reading is expected to consume at least three days. Landau's colleagues on the bench—Judge Ishak Raveh and Judge Benyamin Halevy—will alternate with him in the reading of the judgment.

Eichmann, 55, is being judged on 15 counts of an indictment specifically charging him with criminal complicity in the Nazi campaign to destroy the Jews. He faces the death penalty. If he receives the maximum penalty, his West German attorney, Dr. Robert Servatius, can appeal to the State Supreme Court. If the high court rejects the appeal, Eichmann can ask for clemency from President Izhak Ben-Zvi.

Kathleen Bell, 39, and Irb Underwood, 60, both of Nocona, Tex., died at the accident scene near Jolly, Tex., between this northern Texas city and Henrietta.

Four others, including Mrs. Bell's husband, Walter, 44, and three of her young daughters, died Saturday night and Sunday morning.

Negotiations In Dominican Crisis Collapse

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP)—The troubled Dominican Republic was plunged deep into crisis again Sunday. Negotiations between the government and the opposition were broken off and an opposition spokesman asserted: "We are on the edge of disaster."

The National Civic Union, largest of the opposition organizations and the only one negotiating with the government, announced it was withdrawing from the talks after President Joaquin Balaguer told a news conference the negotiations had reached a "definite impasse."

Balaguer said the negotiations, which have been on and off for a week, deadlocked on the issue of his resignation. He said government officials and the armed forces objected to an opposition demand that would have him step down, to be replaced by an opposition choice.

Asserting he still considered the negotiations open, Balaguer said he didn't know how Dominicans would react to his announcement. But a member of the opposition declared: "The people will give their answer tomorrow. There will be reaction that eventually will take us all right into Fidelismo."

That was a reference to Cuban Communist Prime Minister Fidel Castro.

Baby Suffocated

SALISBURY (AP)—A 4-month-old Salisbury baby died of accidental suffocation, State police reported Sunday.

Troopers said the victim, Phyllis K. Tyndall, was dead on arrival at Peninsula General Hospital here Saturday. Her mother, Mrs. Doris Tyndall, 31, noticed the child appeared to have stopped breathing, police said.

Hams' Satellite To Hitch Ride Into Space, Say "Hi"

VANDENBERG AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP)—A satellite built entirely by amateurs—with a message private citizens all over the world can hear—is scheduled to hitch a ride into space soon aboard an Air Force Discoverer rocket.

The message is "Hi"—four dots and two dots in international Morse code.

The world's 300,000 radio "hams," at least 12,000 of them behind the iron curtain, will be given advance notice when to start listening for Oscar (Orbiting Satellite Carrying Amateur Radio).

Midwest's Storm Toll Reaches 32

By The Associated Press

Harsh weather left at least 32 persons dead in the Midwest and lingered over the northern Great Lakes, New England and the Rockies Sunday with snow, cold and freezing drizzle.

The arctic air dropped temperatures to 34 below zero in Butte, Mont., and 16 below, a record for the date, in Denver, Colo. The bitter cold extended eastward across the plains states.

Most of the deaths were attributed to accidents caused by skidding automobiles on ice-glazed roadways.

A mother and four children drowned in southern Illinois Saturday night when their car skidded off a bridge approach and into a lake near Mount Vernon. The father, John D. Warren, 30, and another child escaped.

Deaths blamed on the storm included seven in Illinois; five in Iowa; four each in Ohio, Arkansas and Indiana; two each in Nebraska and South Dakota; and one each in Missouri, Wisconsin, Kansas, and Kentucky.

Eleven inches of snow piled up at Duluth, Minn., and more was falling. An additional four inches of snow was expected across the northern lakes region by Monday morning.

Snow continued in the northern Rockies. Leadville, Colo., received 8 inches and Denver and Trinidad, Colo., each measured 3 inches.

The subzero readings in the Rockies and Northern Plains included 19 below at Lewistown, Mont.; 16 below at Cheyenne and Casper, Wyo.; 13 below at Helena, Mont., and 10 below at Goodland, Kan.

The cold edged eastward and the Weather Bureau predicted a cold wave with near zero temperatures by morning through much of the Midwest.

Much of the nation had unpleasant weather in some form. A small tornado smashed six homes near Brewton, Ala., injuring 12 persons. Mobile, Ala., reported 3.51 inches of rain in a six-hour period. Heavy rains extended into the Carolinas and Virginia.

U. S. Embassy Target Of Mob

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP)—Shouting "Kennedy to the gallows," about 250 pro-Katanga demonstrators threw stones at the U. S. Embassy here Sunday but police drove them away before they could cause any damage. Five of the demonstrators were arrested and several were hurt in violent clashes in front of the embassy.

At about the same time, a mob of about 200 Katanga Youth League members stoned the U. S. consulate in Elisabethville, Katanga. They broke windows and some entered the building but were ejected by Katanga police. No Americans were injured.

The U. S. Embassy in Brussels is located on the fringe of the so-called neutral zone—which includes the royal palace and Parliament—where no demonstrations are permitted, and on a wide boulevard which police kept the demonstrators from crossing.

7 Die In Car Plunge

OPOTIKI, New Zealand (AP)—An automobile carrying seven young persons plunged into a stream Saturday night killing all seven. The bodies of two girls, 16 and 19, and three men, ranging in age from 18 to 24, were recovered Sunday morning.

CARLSBAD, N.M. (AP)—An underground atomic "peace bomb" was exploded by the United States Sunday and unexpectedly released a small, light cloud of radioactive steam into the air.

However, hours later the Atomic Energy Commission said no radioactivity was detected in any communities near the test site.

Winds carried the cloud north-northwestward and AEC officials, soon after the blast, closed the main road leading to Carlsbad, 24 miles northwest of the site.

The AEC said radioactivity on the highway was not above the level set for safety by the government.

About 10 cars caught between roadblocks were taken to Carlsbad to be washed as a precaution, the AEC said. One helicopter was isolated as being contaminated.

The roadblocks were removed 3½ hours after the detonation of the 5-kiloton bomb.

Surface Dust Kicked Up

The bomb—exploded nearly a quarter of a mile underground—rocked an observation site 4½ miles away, and kicked up a cloud of surface dust right over the detonating chamber at the end of a 1,100-foot tunnel.

Even though the wind was blowing at the observation site, the test went off as scheduled because the wind was not headed toward Carlsbad.

Preliminary checks indicated all scientific experiments came through all right, except possibly an experiment to measure neutrons speeding from the blast, according to Gerald Johnson, assistant for atomic energy to the secretary of defense.

Johnson said there might be damage to a special spinning wheel at the end of a pipe running through the tunnel into the blast chamber.

The venting or escape of radioactivity occurred slowly and the cloud of vapor drifted across the road in a long streamer moving slower than the cloud from an atmospheric test.

Gases Escape Through Vents

Johnson said no more gases were escaping from the tunnel through a vertical shaft at 6 p.m. (EST), but some was coming from vent holes intended to let some steam escape.

The vent pipe, 22 inches wide, perhaps didn't collapse and the steam might have come through it, then up the shaft, but this was speculation, Johnson said.

Dr. Edward Teller, flying in a helicopter when the blast went off, said the vapor started coming out a minute or so after the detonation.

"How much radiation is coming out, we don't know," he said. "There apparently is not much pressure behind it," said the famed nuclear physicist. "It started to vent slowly, then the cloud started to decay."

Two West Germans Accused Of Spying

KARLSRUHE, Germany (AP)—A West German army colonel and a highly placed official have been arrested on suspicion of giving NATO defense secrets to a foreign power, the West German federal prosecutor's office said Sunday.

A spokesman said the colonel was stationed in the West German capital of Bonn until his arrest. The civilian, termed an important official of the Lower Saxony state government, had been closely associated with a German military installation near the city of Hanover, the spokesman said.

17 Arrested In Huntington Blue Law Raids

HUNTINGTON, W. Va. (AP)—Seventeen employees were arrested in raids on two Huntington discount stores for conducting business on Sunday.

Constables Lloyd Sargeant and Homer Bellamy, armed with warrants issued by Magistrate Andrew Kitchen, struck first at Whiz discount store, arresting four persons. Then they went to Heck's discount store, where 13 persons were picked up.

Each posted bond of $500. The warrants were signed by other Huntington merchants, acting as private citizens.

The two stores were full of pre-Christmas shoppers when the constables struck. City police did not participate in the raids, although some were on hand at the stores to prevent any disturbance.

The two stores closed temporarily, but opened again later.

Hearings for the 17 were set for Tuesday morning. The warrants were issued under a section of city code that prohibits the Sunday operation of businesses other than drug stores, service stations and other necessary enterprises.

"I think it's silly," observed Tim Cramer, manager of Heck's, after the raid. He said there were more than 500 customers in the store at the time.

Traffic Accidents Claim Four Lives In Maryland

By The Associated Press
Four persons died on the highways of Maryland over the week end.

Mrs. Thelma B. Niner, 40, died Saturday night after the car she was driving collided with a tractor trailer on U. S. 1, just south of Laurel.

State Police said her vehicle was southbound when it skidded out of control and struck the truck which was northbound.

The victim died several hours later at Leland Memorial Hospital, Riverdale.

The truck driver, Barry K. Weaver, 18, of Terre Hill, Pa., was not reported injured. No charges were placed against him.

Samuel E. Hall, 33, of Cooksville, died Saturday when the car in which he was a passenger skidded out of control on Route 144 in Howard County and rolled over.

Patrolman Elmer C. Cameron of the Howard County Police Department said the driver of the car was John E. Prettyman, 28, Woodbine.

He has been charged with reckless driving, driving under the influence and manslaughter by motor vehicle, Cameron said. Prettyman and a second passenger were reported uninjured.

Thomas J. Williams, 49, of Baltimore, died in St. Joseph's Hospital Sunday as the result of injuries incurred in an auto accident in that city Nov. 8, State Police reported.

Mrs. Isabel B. Komstedt, 64, of Washington, died Friday night after an accident on Suitland Parkway.

A car driven by her husband, Gordon M. Komstedt, 63, an employee of the General Services Administration, continued in the left-hand lane of the highway beyond the end of the divided road near the Silver Hill overpass, according to State Police.

The car sideswiped an oncoming vehicle and overturned, troopers said.

CORE Makes 'Freedom Ride' Support Bid

By The Associated Press
A Baltimore County civic organization which urged the Congress of Racial Equality to cancel next Saturday's freedom ride on U.S. 40 was asked Sunday to endorse or participate in the demonstration.

Allen returned to the air this fall with an hour long comedy variety show after a year's absence from video. Shortly after the new show made its debut, Allen requested a change of time slots.

The show is seen at 7:30 p.m., EST and PST but at 6:30 p.m., CST Allen felt that the time slot was too early for his adult brand of humor.

The comedian said his contract with the network was for 26 shows running through March 20, 1962. He has requested release from the contract effective Dec. 27, at which time he will have completed 13 shows.

Five members of the Eleventh District Civic League met with four officials of the congress (CORE) and reported that 10 of 13 restaurants between White Marsh and the Harford County line had desegregated voluntarily.

Jerome A. Dashner, attorney for the civic group, suggested at the meeting in White Marsh that publicizing the desegregation by the 10 establishments might lead to further voluntary efforts and render the freedom ride unnecessary.

However, Edward Blankenheim, an official of CORE's New York headquarters, said his group wants to effect complete desegregation by means of "the fastest and easiest way possible."

"The freedom ride is the best method to do this," he added. CORE scheduled Saturday's demonstration after reporting that 11 of 35 restaurants which promised to desegregate had failed to do so.

The pledges had induced CORE to cancel a freedom ride originally planned for Nov. 11.

The meeting Sunday came in the wake of Saturday's integrationist protests in Baltimore, Washington and Annapolis. The demonstrations resulted in the arrest of one person.

The defendant, James E. Boardley, 19, Negro, of Annapolis, has been charged with trespass and scheduled to appear before a magistrate in that city at 9 a.m.

His arrest came at Antoinette's Restaurant, where he was taken into custody last weekend and charged similarly.

Some 20 residents of the Annapolis area participated in protests against racially segregated service at restaurants in the state capital.

About 150 white and Negro students—most of them college and high school students from Maryland—staged similar demonstrations in Baltimore. No arrests were reported.

Most of the protests in that city involved picketing only. The integrationists who tried to obtain service in a few restaurants left quietly after hearing recitals of the state's trespass law.

Steve Allen Asks Contract Release

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Comedian Steve Allen said Sunday he has asked the American Broadcasting Co. for a release from his television contract.

The defendant, James E. Boardley, 19, Negro, of Annapolis, has been charged with trespass and scheduled to appear before a magistrate in that city at 9 a.m.

His arrest came at Antoinette's Restaurant, where he was taken into custody last weekend and charged similarly.

Some 20 residents of the Annapolis area participated in protests against racially segregated service at restaurants in the state capital.

About 150 white and Negro students—most of them college and high school students from Maryland—staged similar demonstrations in Baltimore. No arrests were reported.

Most of the protests in that city involved picketing only. The integrationists who tried to obtain service in a few restaurants left quietly after hearing recitals of the state's trespass law.

Albania Independent Of China, Spokesman Says

MOSCOW (AP)—Announcing a rupture in diplomatic relations with the Soviet Union, a spokesman for the Albanian Embassy said Sunday Communist Albania is independent—even of its ally, Red China.

Neither the official news agency, Tass, nor Moscow radio mentioned the break with the little nation accused of Stalinism by Premier Khrushchev at the Soviet Communist party congress in October.

But Pro-Communist, the monthly magazine accepted as a Red bible, hit Moscow's newsstands with an article violently denouncing Albania's leaders. It asserted "the imperialists" were waiting to welcome Albanian party leader Enver Hoxha into their ranks.

Asked about relations with China, the Albanian spokesman said: "We are friends. Whoever wants to be our friend, can be, but we are also independent of China."

The Soviet Union had charged Albania's purpose in quarreling with them was to be able to get aid from the Western powers.

The Albanian's statement about anyone being Albania's friend "who wants to be" left the question open as to whether Hoxha will now seek economic assistance in the West.

17 Arrested In Huntington Blue Law Raids

HUNTINGTON, W. Va. (AP)—Seventeen employees were arrested in raids on two Huntington discount stores for conducting business on Sunday.

Constables Lloyd Sargeant and Homer Bellamy, armed with warrants issued by Magistrate Andrew Kitchen, struck first at Whiz discount store, arresting four persons. Then they went to Heck's discount store, where 13 persons were picked up.

Each posted bond of $500. The warrants were signed by other Huntington merchants, acting as private citizens.

The two stores were full of pre-Christmas shoppers when the constables struck. City police did not participate in the raids, although some were on hand at the stores to prevent any disturbance.

The two stores closed temporarily, but opened again later.

Hearings for the 17 were set for Tuesday morning. The warrants were issued under a section of city code that prohibits the Sunday operation of businesses other than drug stores, service stations and other necessary enterprises.

"I think it's silly," observed Tim Crager, manager of Heck's, after the raid. He said there were more than 500 customers in the store at the time.

Traffic Accidents Claim Four Lives In Maryland

By The Associated Press

Four persons died on the highways of Maryland over the weekend.

Mrs. Thelma B. Niner, 40, died Saturday night after the car she was driving collided with a tractor trailer on U. S. 1, just south of Laurel.

State Police said her vehicle was southbound when it skidded out of control and struck the truck which was northbound.

The victim died several hours later at Leland Memorial Hospital, Riverdale.

The truck driver, Barry K. Weaver, 18, of Terre Hill, Pa., was not reported injured. No charges were placed against him.

Samuel E. Hall, 33, of Cooksville, died Saturday when the car in which he was a passenger skidded out of control on Route 144 in Howard County and rolled over.

Patrolman Elmer C. Cameron of the Howard County Police Department said the driver of the car was John E. Prettyman, 28, Woodbine.

He has been charged with reckless driving, driving under the influence and manslaughter by motor vehicle, Cameron said. Prettyman and a second passenger were reported uninjured.

Thomas J. Williams, 49, of Baltimore, died in St. Joseph's Hospital Sunday as the result of injuries incurred in an auto accident in that city Nov. 8, State Police reported.

Mrs. Isabel B. Komstedt, 64, of Washington, died Friday night after an accident on Suitland Parkway.

A car driven by her husband, Gordon M. Komstedt, 63, an employee of the General Services Administration, continued in the left-hand lane of the highway beyond the end of the divided road near the Silver Hill overpass, according to State Police.

The car sideswiped an oncoming vehicle and overturned, troopers said.

Steve Allen Asks Contract Release

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Comedian Steve Allen said Sunday he has asked the American Broadcasting Co. for a release from his television contract.

Albania Independent Of China, Spokesman Says

MOSCOW (AP)—Announcing a rupture in diplomatic relations with the Soviet Union, a spokesman for the Albanian Embassy said Sunday Communist Albania is independent—even of its ally, Red China.

Neither the official news agency, Tass, nor Moscow radio mentioned the break with the little nation accused of Stalinism by Premier Khrushchev at the Soviet Communist party congress in October.

But Pro-Communist, the monthly magazine accepted as a Red bible, hit Moscow's newsstands with an article violently denouncing Albania's leaders. It asserted "the imperialists" were waiting to welcome Albanian party leader Enver Hoxha into their ranks.

Asked about relations with China, the Albanian spokesman said: "We are friends. Whoever wants to be our friend, can be, but we are also independent of China."

The Soviet Union had charged Albania's purpose in quarreling with them was to be able to get aid from the Western powers.

The Albanian's statement about anyone being Albania's friend "who wants to be" left the question open as to whether Hoxha will now seek economic assistance in the West.

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 7.—next to Santa Claus, Peter Levathes is the busiest man I know and each time I speak with this dynamic young head of 20th Century-Fox I'm struck by his enthusiasm over each new venture. The very new is his purchase of Phoebe and Henry Ephron's play "The Age of Consent."

"I believe it has been re-named 'Take Her, She's Mine,' he told me, 'and it will play New Haven, Boston and Philadelphia before it comes to Broadway.'

Of course, it's impossible to talk with Mr. L. without bringing up "Cleopatra." He tells me 20th plans to premiere the Elizabeth Taylor spectacle in November, 1962. Just back from Rome where he personally checked up on promised to telephone me as soon as she landed.

Had a chance to talk with Greer of the Soviet airline Aeroflot has inspected the airport Saturday. She told me the beautiful home where she and Buddy Fogelson visited in Palm Beach, the estate of Colonel and Mrs. Paul, will house President and Mrs. Kennedy and their children over the holidays. It's just a block from the home of Joseph Kennedy, the Presidents' father, and right on the water.

Mrs. Paul, Greer told me, is a charming woman, and is the widow of Ambassador Bay, who for many years was the U. S. Ambassador in Norway.

"It's a dream place," said Greer, "and already security men have been patrolling it in readiness for the Presidents' occupancy."

The Folsom Observer, official newspaper of Folsom Penitentiary, where most of "Reprieve" was filmed, doesn't approve of the way Ben Gazzara plays baseball. Says the Observer, "Gazzara evidently 'slud' when he should 'slide'."

But that doesn't make Ben mad—nothing does, waiter two years of trying to persuade Janice Rule to marry him, he finally was able to put the ring on her finger. He always said she was the only woman for him.

Janice appeared in Broadway's "The Happiest Girl in the World," and I was sorry when it closed because she not only sings well, but she's a fine dancer, too.

Taina Elg was an unhappy girl when she left Hollywood a year ago. Just about everything seemed to go wrong for her including the termination of her MGM contract and the ending of her romance with Keith Larsen when he surprisingly married Vera Miles.

But Taina is literally dancing on clouds these days. From New York she called me with the exciting word that David Merrick has signed her to star in the road company of "Irma La Douce." "And we'll play six weeks on the coast, three in San Francisco and three in Los Angeles," the happy ballerina told me. When I asked her where she had been this past year, she said, "back home in Finland—and also in Paris. I thought I needed a change of scenery."

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

My neighbor Gracie Allen, everyone will be glad to know, is feeling fine again. There was nothing the matter with her that a little rest wouldn't remedy.

Signe Hasso, Norwegian actress who lived here for many years, is back in town, the house guest of the Max Showalters.

Easy for Peter Falk and his wife Alyce to give a "twist" party in their home since Peter says they have no furniture in the house and there's plenty of room for the "twisters."

When Walt Disney read about Mia Farrow in my column, he sent word that he's like to test her. Mia won the Gold Medal Drama Award at her school.

STOCKHOLM (UPI)—The head of the Soviet airline Aeroflot has inspected the airport Saturday. She told me the beautiful home where she and Buddy Fogelson visited in Palm Beach, the estate of Colonel and Mrs. Paul, will house President and Mrs. Kennedy and their children over the holidays. It's just a block from the home of Joseph Kennedy, the Presidents' father, and right on the water.

Gen. E. F. Logunov of Aeroflot inspected the airport Saturday. Aeroflot and Pan American World Airways are scheduled to begin service in the near future between New York and Moscow under an agreement between the Soviet and United States governments.

Marymount, and I personally think this beautiful young girl, daughter of Maureen O'Sullivan and John Farrow, will be heard from.

After a long absence from the screen, Jon Hall is talking to Sam Katzman about playing in "Sabres," which starts next fall.

Mrs. John Martin, the former Jane Weeks, telephoned and Jane Russell's wait ball in New York was a great success. She said that Bob Hope was terrific, and Helen Hayes and many other big stars were there to help. Nice that Bob will be master of ceremonies at the Academy awards.

Friends of Hearst executive J. D. Gortatowsky will be happy to know that he has gone home from the Roosevelt Hospital in New York following serious surgery, and is feeling very well again.

That's all today. See you tomorrow! K

Help us light "The Dark Corner!"

MENTAL RETARDATION is a problem! It's a problem that affects people . . . 5,000,000 Americans or, more specifically, 1 out of every 3 members of your community, are touched by this problem!

Until recently, the mentally-retarded were relegated to closets, attics . . . to THE DARK CORNER to bear alone the burden of their affliction through life. Today, this is not so. Through research and greater understanding, most people recognize the scope and extent of the problem of MENTAL RETARDATION . . . But recognition is not enough . . . we must do something about it!

President Kennedy said recently, "... achievements in the prevention and therapy of mental retardation can be spectacular and can bring important benefits to mankind. The goal of a stepped-up research program should be to prevent retardation; but, failing this, we must provide for the retarded the same opportunity for full social development that is the BIRTHRIGHT OF EVERY AMERICAN CHILD."

WBAL-TV Study Provides Opportunity

THE DARK CORNER, produced by WBAL-TV, is an exhaustive 90-minute study of the problem of MENTAL RETARDATION in the Maryland community as it affects you and your neighbors, provides you the opportunity to help fulfill this birthright!

Conceived through contact with the Maryland Society for Mentally Retarded Children, Inc., THE DARK CORNER has been 1½ years in preparation. Countless hours of research . . . shooting approximately 18,000 feet of film . . . editing this film to the desired time . . . all of this has resulted in this finished production. WBAL-TV 11 staff members have worked tirelessly on this study . . . consulting agencies with invaluable backgrounds in the area of mental retardation . . . meeting with doctors . . . observing the retarded in their daily activity. Parents and guardians of mentally retarded children have been most cooperative in making this study possible.

First TV Project of its Kind

Here, in the first television project of its kind, is presented a clear picture of MENTAL RETARDATION in the Maryland community. It isn't a pretty picture—because it's a true one, presenting this affliction for the terrible human tragedy it is.

Hope for the Retarded

Nevertheless, throughout THE DARK CORNER there is a feeling of hope . . . a positive conviction that something can be done about this problem which touches the lives of so many.

YOU CAN DO SOMETHING about MENTAL RETARDATION! Watch THE DARK CORNER. Tell your friends about it . . . think about this problem . . . discuss it. Then, you will be ready to find ways of alleviating this problem . . . of helping to fulfill the birthright of every American child!

"Cleo," Mr. Levathes says, "we have no complaints."

I can tell my Hollywood producer friends right now—don't both bidding for the screen rights to Arne Bancroft's new Broadway coming up in a few weeks, "First Wife." Very quietly Hal Wallis bought the Jay Presson play months ago, even before Anne was signed to star in it.

"First Wife" will get off to a good start if precedent means anything. It is being directed by Arthur Penn who also directed Anne in her two previous Broadway hits, "The Miracle Worker" and "Two for the Seesaw."

I was asleep when Brigid Bazlen telephoned me from Manila very early in the morning, where she and Nick Ray are making personal appearances with "King of Kings." She has been in Tokyo, Hong Kong, Bangkok and Manila, and she said she is coming back to California in about a week for just two days, because she said she wants to know what she's to do next for MGM.

"I don't want to be idle," she said.

Brigid won't be idle, not with the success she made in "King of Kings" and "Honeymoon Machine." She was full of her travels and the things she's seen, and promised to telephone me as soon as she landed.

Had a chance to talk with Greer Garson when she and her aunt came to Robinsons for my "Tell it to Louella" book signing session. She told me the beautiful home where she and Buddy Fogelson visited in Palm Beach, the estate of Colonel and Mrs. Paul, will house President and Mrs. Kennedy and their children over the holidays. Historical Points Receive Stress

MOOREFIELD, W. Va. — The West Virginia Centennial signs for Moorefield and Hardy County arrived last week and are being erected in the community.

Each sign, measuring 29 inches by 40 inches, has the Confederate cap and Yankee hat insignia donated by the Potomac Light and Power Company to identify the sign as an official Centennial sign.

The signs were painted by Tom Halterman, Winchester, Va., former resident of Moorefield, who has the contract for the painting in a four state area. Two of the historical markers were donated by citizens who contributed to the Town Annexation election last year from funds left over after the election.

The sign at the Moorefield Presbyterian Church reads "During the war years, this church was used by both north and south as a hospital. Union forces stabled horses here and burned the pews for firewood. Federal government paid $800 indemnity in 1914." The other sign paid for from this fund is the sign at Olivet Cemetery which reads "Soldiers of both north and south buried here. Battles took place on the cemetery and adjoining hill, Jan. 3, 1863, Col. James Washburn, (USA) attached by Gen. William E. Jones (CSA) — Union won. Sept. 11, 1863, Capt. McNeill defeated Maj. W. E. Stevens."

Mrs. Eunice D. McCoy bought the sign at the S. A. McMeche house which reads "Built in 1853, this home was occupied by officers of both sides as the fortunes of war changed. McCausland was staying here when Gen. Averell attacked his troops camped at Goings Ford and Old Fields."

The Moorefield Development Company bought the sign at the Old Fields Bridge which reads "August 7, 1864, General W. W. Averell overtook and defeated the forces of General J. B. McCausland and Gen. Bradley T. Johnson who were returning from burning Chambersburg, Pa."

Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Harrison purchased the sign at the Hotel McNeill which reads "Built in 1857 and known as Mullen Hotel, this building offered shelter to many well-known personages. Valuables, belonging to local citizens, were hidden in the brick posts supporting the porch when the enemy was at hand."

Donald J. Baker purchased the sign in front of his home which was the old Lobb House, this sign reads "January 10, 1863, General W. E. Jones attacked Federal troops under Col. James Washburn, entrenched on Cemetery Hill. Firing across Moorefield, a cannon ball entered east gable of this house. Now Baker residence."

The Wardsville Lions Club bought the sign which will be erected at Wardsville which reads "Col. S. W. Downey (USA) attacked and killed Capt. John Umbaugh, rebel guerilla and four men at home of John T. Wilson. General Imboden (CSA) captured a supply train Dec. 22, 1862."

The Mathias Ruritan Club purchased the sign at Lost River Gap which will be erected shortly. This sign reads "Ringold Cavalry was defeated here May 10, 1864. The Federals were seeking Capt. McNeill's men and Gen. Imboden hurriedly crossed from Valley of Virginia to assist McNeill to escape."

As more historical events are definitely placed resulting from the 29 battles, skirmishes or affairs in Hardy County, additional signs will be erected if sponsors can be found. Visitors already have stopped to photograph the signs and are seeking more information.

New Elementary Course Explained In Exhibits

FROSTBURG — Students in a course entitled "The Elementary Child and His Curriculum" at Frostburg State Teachers College held a display in Allegany Hall of the visual aids which they made to use in demonstrating or as an aid in teaching some mathematical concepts.

The 30 students in the class, which is taught by Homer R. Pankey, new instructor in education at the college, had to relate the aids to the grade level in which each plans to teach. Before beginning the project the students studied and prepared a paper on the history of the number system.

Among many teaching aids which the class made were the number line, counters, abacus, flannel board, place value packets, liquid and dry weight tables, money chart, flash cards, fractional pies, composite multiplication table, number boards on which a new base can be established, device for estimating inches within one half inch and Roman numeral chart.

Other aids included geometric designs divided into fractional units, reusable bar graph, various materials to use in teaching all types of measurement, fractional number line, button counter, clothespin number, number tree, sandpaper numbers, plywood cutout numbers, counting chart, play money, number kit containing various counting devices and various arithmetic games for grades one through six.

Mr. Pankey and his class of juniors, who are preparing for elementary teaching, work very closely with the laboratory school, where they have the full cooperation of Dr. Robert Shadick, principal, and his faculty.

"The 10-hour block course is new this year at the college," stated Mr. Pankey, "and is a very successful means of tying the elementary school curriculum together, as well as combining theory and practice."

The students, Mr. Pankey, explained, prepare a sample lesson in each subject. They first discuss theory, then develop a lesson around it. The lesson is then taught to the class and evaluated. Next it is taught at the proper grade level in the campus school and again evaluated by the class and instructor. The students write units and prepare projects and visual aids in each field.

"The areas covered in the course," stated Pankey, "include the language arts, arithmetic, social studies, science, physical education, art and music."

Members of the college faculty will assist the class in the areas of physical education, art and music. Miss Dorothy Hilliard, Miss Rosann Langhans and James G. Pierce, specialists in these fields, will serve as consultants in their respective areas.

Meeting two hours daily for a semester, the course includes a brief study of the history of education in the United States, professional ethics, discipline, classroom organization for the school day, physical plan for most effective teaching, and study and evaluation of various texts.

Appeals Court Rejects Case

An appeal filed by a Tri-Towns area man who was sentenced to three years for breaking into and stealing from the Potomac Candy Company, Westport, was dismissed Wednesday by the Maryland Court of Appeals.

William W. Wilson was sentenced on July 6, 1960 after he entered a plea of guilty to the breaking and stealing charge, but he had pleaded not guilty to the other two counts of the indictment, larceny and receiving stolen goods.

The state accepted the latter two pleas, Judge H. Hall Hammond wrote in his opinion.

However, on February 17, Wilson filed a motion to strike out and correct an illegal sentence. Wilson claimed that the count to which he pleaded guilty was ambiguous since the charge could be construed as "breaking with intent to steal," for which the maximum penalty is 18 months.

The plea under which he was sentenced carries with it a maximum penalty of ten years imprisonment.

After a hearing, Judge Harris refused to modify the sentence and Wilson filed an appeal to this ruling.

Under Maryland law, the appeals court ruled, this is an appeal not allowed by law and that the procedure for Wilson would have been under the post Conviction Act.

However, Judge Hammond said the elements of the crime of which Judge Harris found him guilty on his plea of guilty are simple and easily understood, and the court finds nothing in the record to suggest that Wilson did not voluntarily plead guilty to breaking and stealing with full understanding of the elements of the crime with which he was charged.

Appeals Court Rejects Case

An appeal filed by a Tri-Towns area man who was sentenced to three years for breaking into and stealing from the Potomac Candy Company, Westernport, was dismissed Wednesday by the Maryland Court of Appeals.

William W. Wilson was sentenced on July 6, 1960 after he entered a plea of guilty to the breaking and stealing charge, but he had pleaded not guilty to the other two counts of the indictment, larceny and receiving stolen goods.

The state accepted the latter two pleas, Judge H. Hall Hammond wrote in his opinion.

However, on February 17, Wilson filed a motion to strike out and correct an illegal sentence.

Wilson claimed that the count to which he pleaded guilty was ambiguous since the charge could be construed as "breaking with intent to steal," for which the maximum penalty is 18 months.

The plea under which he was sentenced carries with it a maximum penalty of ten years imprisonment.

After a hearing, Judge Harris refused to modify the sentence and Wilson filed an appeal to this ruling.

Under Maryland law, the appeals court ruled, this is an appeal not allowed by law and that the procedure for Wilson would have been under the post Conviction Act.

However, Judge Hammond said the elements of the crime of which Judge Harris found him guilty on his plea of guilty are simple and easily understood, and the court finds nothing in the record to suggest that Wilson did not voluntarily plead guilty to breaking and stealing with full understanding of the elements of the crime with which he was charged.

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Recently in your column you referred to The Old-Too-Soon, Smart-Too-Late Club. I'm new in town and would like to meet some nice people. Please tell me more about this club and how I can get in.

—NEV FACE
DEAR FACE: This is a switch. Most people who write to me want to know how to get OUT—not in.

The Old-Too-Soon, Smart-Too-Late Club is a mythical organization which I formed about five years ago. The membership is composed largely of women who managed to get old too soon and smart too late. The following lines have made many a woman eligible for membership:

1. "My wife's health is very poor right now. I'm afraid of what might happen if I ask her for divorce. Be patient, dear."
2. "Have faith in me. We'll be married as soon as the kids are out of high school."
3. "Have faith in me. We'll be married as soon as the kids are out of college."

4. "Have faith in me. We'll be married as soon as the kids are married."
5. "Mother has a very bad heart. If I marry outside my religion it will kill her. Wait."

6. "I can't see my way financially right now. I should be out of debt by the end of next year."
7. "This arrangement is perfect — why spoil it? Don't we get along much better than the married couples we know, Sweetheart?"

By now I believe you get the drift. If not, the following letter should do it.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: If I had the courage I'd take the gasp.

If someone told ME this story I'd say he was crazy, but when it happens to you, Ann, you can think of a million reasons why it's logical and sane.

When I was 22 (14 years ago) I fell in love with a handsome, successful, fascinating man. Jim was ten years my senior—and my boss. He told me his wife was selfish, frigid, extravagant, and boring. She spent several months of the year in Europe. Their son went to boarding school. Jim had more clothes at my apartment than at home. We took several "business trips" together and he bought me some lovely furs and jewelry.

This went on for eight years. I never looked at another man in all that time. On my 30th birthday I told him to get a divorce or we were through.

He begged me to wait until his son had entered college—just another 18 months. I agreed. Then his wife had an operation. He couldn't talk about a divorce until she was completely recovered. Next, his father-in-law was stricken with cancer. He couldn't upset the whole family at a time like that.

Three years passed before things settled down to normal. I told him I wanted marriage or we were through for good. These are his exact words: "I'm sorry, dear, but I'm in line for the presidency of the firm and a divorce would ruin my chances. I'll give you $5,000, a plane ticket to New York and I'll see that you get a wonderful job. You're a grand person and you'd make some man a great little wife."

There's my story, Ann Landers. Just sign me

Want a drug to help your diet? Cheapest and safest — your own dream of your new dress-size!

Secrets of Charm

by John Robert Powers

Why Can't Science Invent A Will-Power Pill?

Ah, if science could only capture a diet-sized dose of will power, cover it with a colorful, tasty sugar-substitute, package it prettily and put it on the market! That's all dieters are really looking for when they buy reducing agents.

They think they need a crutch, something dependable to lean on during the lean months ahead. They're ready to accept anything that offers to do for them what they seemingly can't do for themselves—like saying NO to snacks and second helpings.

They could probably accomplish their aims without the help of any drugs at all, if they really wanted to and worked at it hard enough. But people are funny—and you and I are no exceptions. We don't respect the fact that we can generate our own pressures and respond to them just as well as to outside pressures.

Let's face facts. Most of us have a lot more respect for contrived pressures that cost us money.

Still facing facts, most of us NEED pressures of some sort to do the things that are hard to do. Like dieting. And most doctors will agree that a harmless crutch of one kind or another is not only OK for reluctant dieters but may make the difference between reducing and staying fat. In his opinion (and in yours and ours) the cost of the crutches doesn't matter, as long as the dieter can afford it. Health does come ahead of money.

On the other side of the scale, waste is waste, even to a millionaire on a diet. And the possibilities for harm in any reducing drugs and preparations belong in the province of the doctor. So, the sensible thing is to see him first before believing any pill's promise. He'll know (better than you and I) whether your pocket and your physical condition can support the "crutch."

And he and I would probably be a great deal happier — and your health would be in safer hands — if you'd consider such cheap-but-nourishing "fillers" as carrot or celery sticks, half hour before each meal (except breakfast, since both he and I are also half-awake and half-human at such times). If you think you need a carbohydrate starter, take a cookie.

If you think you must have a whip to apply to your will power, you have one. Both the whip and the will power are in you, just waiting to be used. One day at a time. One meal at a time.

It will cost you absolutely nothing to obtain my free "Diet and Calorie Guide." Send a note right now to me, c/o this newspaper. Sometimes 450 calories can look juicier (in calories) than the piece of pie it pretends to be. Knowing the count is bound to lower calorie intake. "Your Beauty Diet" is a good investment—merely 10 cents upon request to me, at this newspaper.

Secrets Of Charm by John Robert Powers

Why Can't Science Invent A Will-Power Pill?

Ah, if science could only capture a diet-sized dose of will power, cover it with a colorful, tasty sugar-substitute, package it prettily and put it on the market! That's all dieters are really looking for when they buy reducing agents.

They think they need a crutch, something dependable to lean on during the lean months ahead. They're ready to accept anything that offers to do for them what they seemingly can't do for themselves—like saying NO to snacks and second helpings.

They could probably accomplish their aims without the help of any drugs at all, if they really wanted to and worked at it hard enough. But people are funny—and you and I are no exceptions. We don't respect the fact that we can generate our own pressures and respond to them just as well as to outside pressures.

Let's face facts. Most of us have a lot more respect for contrived pressures that cost us money.

Still facing facts, most of us NEED pressures of some sort to do the things that are hard to do. Like dieting. And most doctors will agree that a harmless crutch of one kind or another is not only OK for reluctant dieters but may make the difference between reducing and staying fat. In his opinion (and in yours and ours) the cost of the crutches doesn't matter, as long as the dieter can afford it. Health does come ahead of money.

On the other side of the scale, waste is waste, even to a millionaire on a diet. And the possibilities for harm in any reducing drugs and preparations belong in the province of the doctor. So, the sensible thing is to see him first before believing any pill's promise. He'll know (better than you and I) whether your pocket and your physical condition can support the "crutch."
